

P0010-Scope

The progress of global urbanization, especially in developing countries, is leading to an increased need in ecological and green urban-metro transport solutions. As a result, urban rail transit has become a priority for public transport in large and medium-sized cities, and generated large demand for the construction of urban rail transit projects, which should be developed under the people-first principles and the requirements of the sustainable development goals (SDGs) advocated by the UN.